

Overcoming Challenges

“How has Missouri Farm Bureau helped its members overcome challenges?”

Throughout history, agriculture has seen its fair share of challenges and hardships. Many times farmers have lost crops, land, and livestock, faced low markets, or struggled with government regulations. However, the industry continues to thrive today due to the resilience and true grit of its members.

Missouri Farm Bureau is proud to support its members through these difficult times. Farmers have spent many hours writing legislation, lobbying government officials, and speaking with members. This resilience has led to many accomplishments and the development of programs that support our industry.
